Overview

- Background
- ▶ Progress
- ▶ The future
- ▶ Thinking about an endgame strategy
- ▶ Priorities (IMHO) with Māori

Background

...the tobacco companies can go to hell. We will no longer sacrifice our generations so you can make profits... (Hone Harawira)

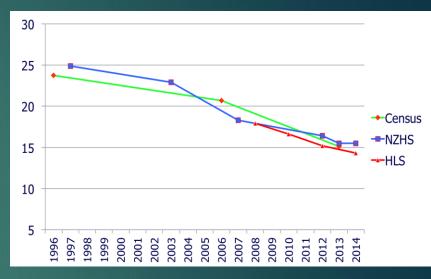

- 2003: Indigenous clauses introduced to FCTC
- > 2006: Māori party bill on eliminating tobacco supply
- > 2006: Kaupapa Tupeka Kore announced
- 2006: Tobacco control community mobilization
- 2010: Māori Affairs Select Committee Inquiry

Recap on progress

- Policies and legislation:
 - © POS and plain packs
 - © Sales to minors penalties & duty free
 - © Taxation
- Interventions:
 - 😊 Disinvestment in tobacco programmes (Edwards, 2015)
 - 😊 Lack of action on MASC recommendations (Ball, 2016)
 - Realignment towards focus on reactive services (Edwards, 2015)
 - A comprehensive tobacco control programme?
 - Cessation will have limited impact (Chapman, 2016)
 - ▶ Need a balanced programme (incl policy) (Edwards, 2015)

Where are we at?

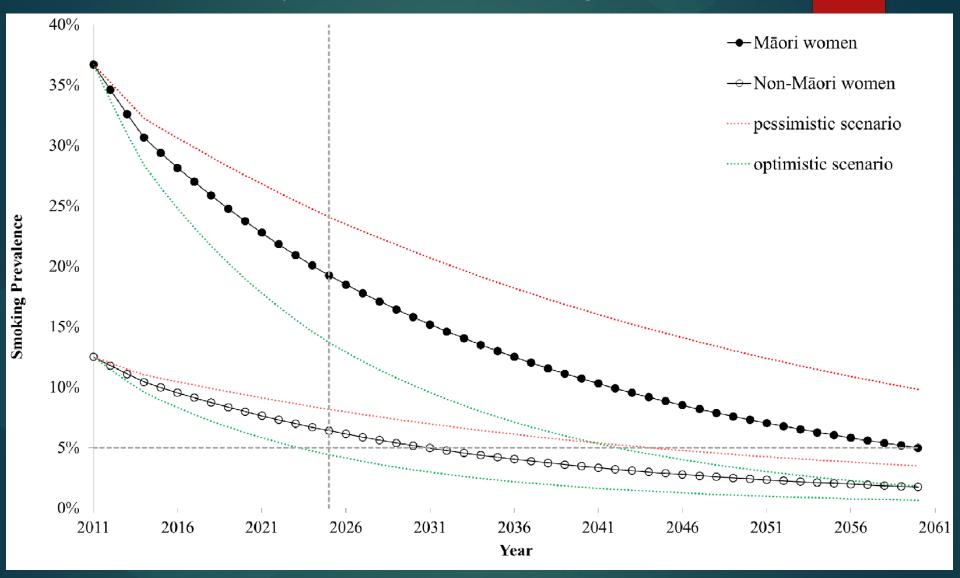

- General population reductions
- Survey results Inconsistent
 - particularly for Māori (Ball, 2016)

Disparities for Māori continue, and continue, and continue... and are likely to continue

A strategic approach

- Gendall et al 2013; Edwards, 2015:
 - Support for endgames = voting constituencies
- ▶ Edwards, 2015:
 - Māori support mixed but still substantial = a bit of work to do
- ▶ Edwards, 2015:
 - Good potential for supply side policies logical but under utilised
- Ongoing calls for a strategy

A government led endgame strategy?

- Needed to justify resources
- > Timeframes?
- Continued BAU & incremental change?
- Treaty?
- Essential but also likely to fall short

A beyond BAU endgame strategy

> A sector led strategy

What could a beyond business as usual strategy look like?

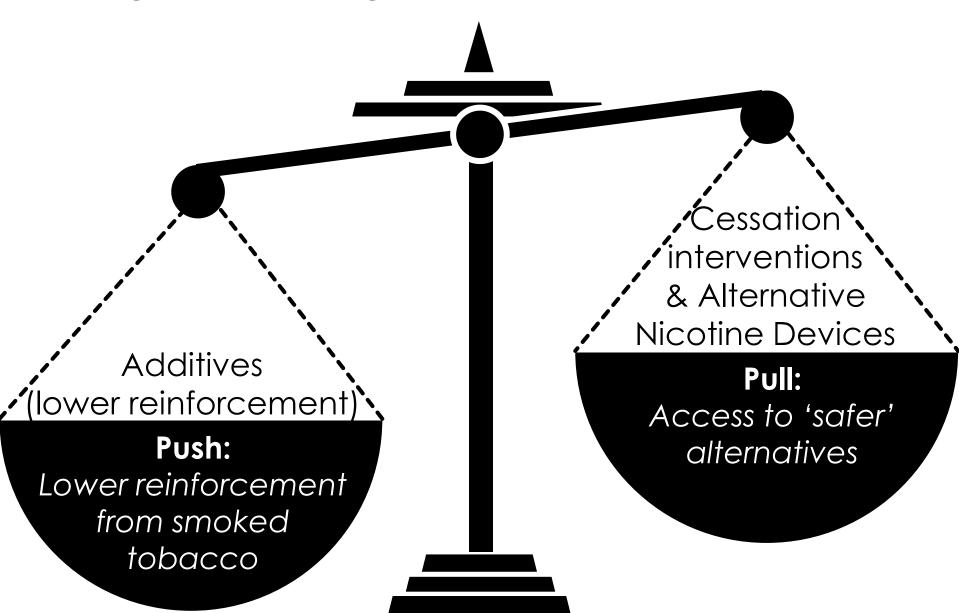

Challenge # 1: What do we mean by a TKA/SFNZ?

- Differing understandings (Gendall, 2014; Ball, in-print)
- Abstinence vs Harm Minimisation
 - Abstinence aligned to Māori Tupeka Kore aspirations
 - Harm minimization fundamentally changes endgame goal

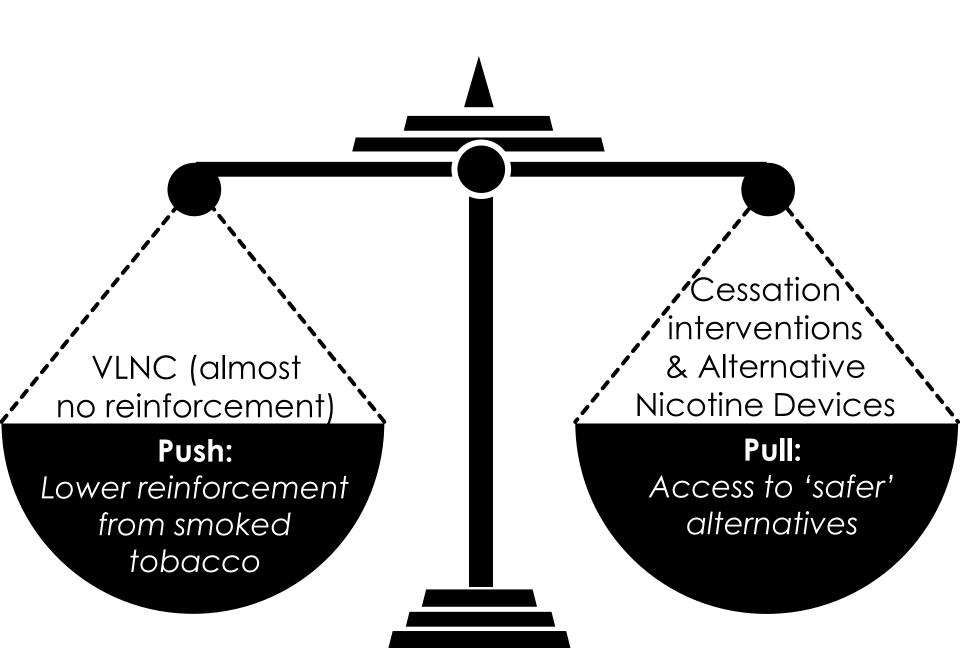

Challenge #2: Demand vs supply strategies

- Current substantial (BAU) focus on demand side
- Demand side: politically acceptable, slow, & inequitable
- Supply side: politically tricky, faster, & more equitable
 - Support for supply side strategies from Māori (Ball, inprint)

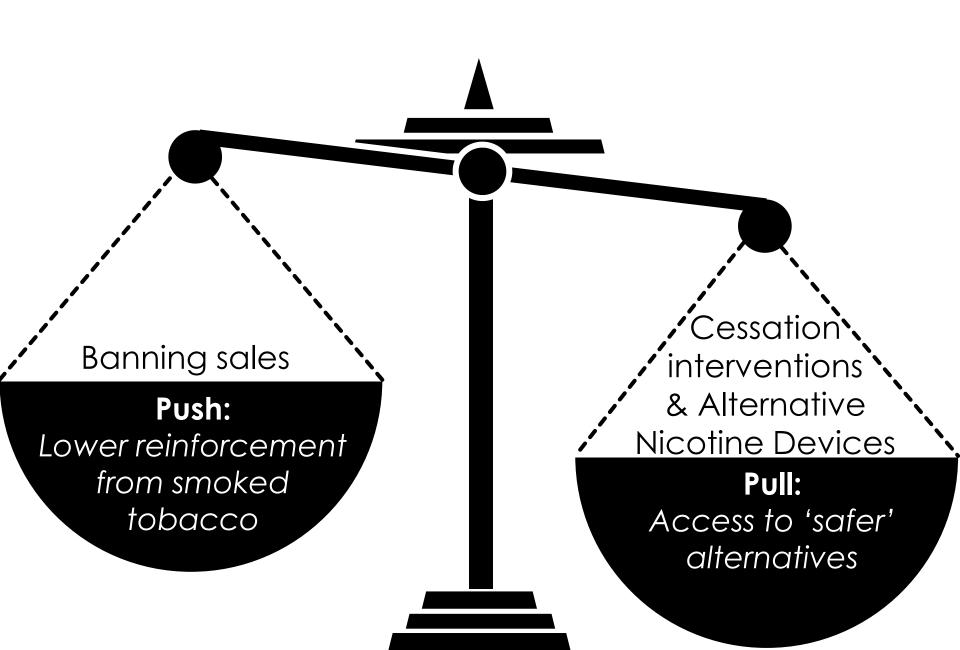

An example of a 'beyond' strategy: Finding the tipping point in the supply market

Conclusion: Priorities with Māori

- ► A beyond BAU 2025 strategy
- Agree on a sector unifying goal
- Active protection: Government policies and regulation
 - ▶ Building constituencies of support for supply strategies
 - Using existing regulatory framework levers
 - Regulating ENDS/ANDS
- Enabling Māori participation and partnerships in advocacy and denormalisation campaigns
- Strategic research and efficient use of resources
